xenosphere

– noun, coined Lorraine O'Grady 2010, from Gk. xenos "foreign, strange" + sphaira, "globe, ball" [zen-no's-fear].

(DEFINITION: not required. But if collaborators wish to create their own, they may. If a definition is provided, it should be given in dictionary format and include an "example sentence" of the word's usage. The "author" of the usage sentence can be imaginary, or can be the collaborator, with the date that of the collaborator's performance of the piece.)

score for performance:

1. Think of an "Other" (animal, vegetable, or mineral).
2. Create a record (audio, visual, or text) of your interaction (real and/or imaginary) (intellectual and/or emotional) with this "Other."
3. Send a (low-res, low-tech, low-value) copy of this record of interaction to Lorraine O'Grady for her archive.
